FOREWORD

Doru Romulus Costea
State Secretary for Global Affairs
Romanian Ministry of Foreign Affairs

Since 2007, Romania's role in development cooperation has radically changed, shifting from beneficiary country to donor of official development assistance (ODA). We have taken significant steps in formulating and streamlining the implementation of our international development cooperation policy.

For the period 2007-2009, Romania's total ODA volume was around 270 million EUR. The yearly increase in our ODA contribution was around 8 million EUR and despite the economic and financial crisis, Romania remains committed to make efforts for reaching the ODA target for 2015.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs, as the national coordinator of the ODA policy, has made it a priority to develop partnerships with national and international stakeholders dealing with developing cooperation.

To that effect, the Romanian Government is involved in partnerships at four levels: with other donors (in the context of reaching collective ODA commitments and of joint ODA projects), with international organizations involved in efforts toward reaching the MDGs (UN, European Commission, OECD), with partner developing states and with national stakeholders (NGDOs, governmental institutions, academics and the private sector).

We have had the opportunity to learn from the more experienced ones in order to develop our capacity, both in the governmental and non-governmental sector, the legal and institutional framework, shape our international profile as a donor, as well as increase public awareness about ODA.

Moreover, we have contributed our resources and expertise to promoting joint initiatives with other partners, thus avoiding the fragmentation of our aid.

In terms of disbursement, the first 3 years as a donor, we channelled most of the ODA budget through multilateral organizations, mainly UN agencies and global funds, like the GFATM (Global Fund against AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria) and Education for All-Fast Track Initiative.

We allocated our resources to the priority global development sectors reflected in the Millennium Development Goals (health, primary education, human rights, environment protection, economic development) and we have consolidated our partnership with the civil society.

A priority at this point is developing public-private partnerships. To this end, we organized seminars and consultations dedicated to the private sector and we are making efforts to amend our national legislation to adequately reflect the role of the private sector in the international development cooperation policy.

Romania is committed to become a reliable partner in the global efforts to fight poverty and reach the MDGs. We learned from our experience that through partnerships we can make the most of our resources and increase our donor capacity. We also learned that a successful partnership should be based on the principles of aid effectiveness and take into consideration the added value of each partner.

GENERAL INFORMATION

What is the development cooperation policy?

Development cooperation, in its modern form, began after the World War II. It was only after such disaster that the international system became mature enough to realize that all countries are linked and the stability and prosperity of one will most certainly foster stability and prosperity for all. It was with the vision of this global web that nations began helping each other and it is with the vision of a world in which aid is no longer needed that official development assistance is being provided.

Bearing this in mind, Romania's aim as an ODA donor is to support people in developing countries, including low and medium-income states, to overcome poverty. The notion of poverty cannot be defined simply as the lack of financial resources but also as citizens' deprivation of food, education, health services, jobs, political involvement and infrastructure.

Our overall objective is to support the partner countries' efforts to implement their own national development strategies. We rely in our efforts on the idea that development must be owned and its pace adapted to each beneficiary country's internal circumstances and needs.

Political Coordination

The Romanian Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MFA) is the main institution in charge of managing and implementing the national development cooperation policy.

The development assistance, including humanitarian assistance, is financed from the MFA's budget, through a separate budgetary line, in accordance with the existing legal framework.

However, besides the MFA ODA budget, Romania's overall ODA contribution includes funds from most of our line ministries. Such contributions usually consist in providing scholarships supported from their own budgets and in financing certain international institutions playing an active role in development cooperation. Moreover, the line ministries contribute by promoting and implementing projects in the benefit of our partner countries.

Our partners

In designing and implementing Romania's development cooperation policy, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the development cooperation policy's national coordinator, undertakes consultations with other line ministries, governmental institutions, civil society and private sector representatives.

National Partners

Governmental institutions

The main framework for inter-institutional dialogue is the Commission for Economic Cooperation and International Development, established through the GD 747/2007. The Commission is a forum for analysis, debate and planning in terms of the implementation process. The Commission's chairmanship and the secretariat are provided by the MFA.

The civil society and the private sector

The MFA acknowledges the important role civil society and the private sector could play in defining and implementing the national development cooperation policy.

While our cooperation with the private sector is only beginning, the MFA has maintained a constant dialogue with the representatives of civil society in order to exchange opinions, expertise and best practices on issues related to the international development cooperation and identify cooperation opportunities.

The Romanian NGDO Platform (FOND), set up on October 16th 2006, is MFA's official partner in the efforts to implement the national development cooperation policy. The Platform has so far received funds for the implementation of several development education and awareness raising projects (the awareness-raising campaigns on the MDGs in 2008, the Romania-Republic of Moldova NGO Forum in 2010, the Romanian Development Camp of 2010, the Black Sea NGOs Forum of 2010. Moreover, FOND was supported by the MFA in organizing the first two editions of the Black Sea NGO Forum (2008 and 2009) and representatives of FOND were invited to all main events and capacity-building seminars organized by the MFA.

International partners

The setting up of global partnerships for development lies at the very core of successful international development cooperation, so much so that it is, in itself, one of the Millennium Development Goals (MDG no. 8).

Romania's status as donor of ODA entails its involvement in international partnerships at several levels:

- at EU level, with European institutions (The European Commission etc.), with European financing organizations, with other Member States;
- at global level, with other international organizations active in development (OECD, UN organizations, the World Bank, IOM etc);
- with partner ODA beneficiary countries, particularly Romania's priority partners: R. Moldova, Serbia, Georgia.

At EU level, Romania adhered to the collective and individual ODA commitments (the European Consensus for Development, Code of Conduct for EU Donors' Division of Labour, Council Conclusions etc.), as full partner, alongside the other EU donors, in the effort towards achieving established ODA objectives. Romania has been contributing annually, since 2007, to the EU external aid budget, which finances the geographic and thematic development assistance instruments and, as of 2011, it will contribute to the European Development Fund (EDF), the main EU financial instrument targeting development assistance in the African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) regions.

Romania's EU membership also entails our involvement in the drawing up and management of EU development policies, including through active participation in the Council working groups and Commission committees which deal with EU development policies and external assistance instruments.

At global level, Romania is a party to the Millennium Declaration, the Monterrey Consensus, the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness and the Accra Agenda for Action.

Providing ODA through multilateral channels (UN agencies, OECD, EU programmes and funds, the World Bank etc.) represents an effective instrument for Romania to meet its international commitments and contribute to financing of priority global development sectors reflected in the Millennium Development Goals.

On the other hand, bilateral assistance, provided by Romania directly to its partner states, not only strengthens bilateral relations but also provides us with the means to efficiently promote the expertise we accumulated during the transition period to the benefit of our priority states.

Our objective is, therefore, to progressively increase the volume of bilateral ODA as Romania gains experience in conceiving and implementing development assistance programmes, adapted to promote Romania's expertise and comparative advantages as a donor.

Romania's ODA contributions: 2007-2009

In accordance to the strategic and legal framework, starting with 2007, Romania established a special budgetary line dedicated to financing development cooperation projects and initiatives.

Romanian development assistance contributions at national level for 2007, 2008, and 2009 were (in round figures) 80 million EUR, 94 million EUR, and 99 million EUR respectively.

In terms of disbursement, most of the funds constitute Romania's contribution to the EU's development cooperation budget, followed by scholarships, offered mainly by the Romanian Ministry of Education, Research, Youth and Sports.

The ODA budget of the Romanian MFA was 4.67 million EUR in 2007, 1.92 million EUR in 2008 and 1,83 million EUR in 2009.

For the next years, a progressive increase of the overall ODA funds is expected. This evolution will be due to the contribution to the 10th European Development Fund* and various international pledges made by Romania.

Disbursement of MFA's ODA budget: 2007-2009

The MFA's ODA budget started from 4,67 million EUR in 2007; however, due to the effects of the international financial and economic crisis, it decreased successively during the next two years.

MFA's ODA funds disbursed to the benefit of Romania's priority countries

In 2007, when official development cooperation started in Romania, the funds were disbursed only through multilateral channels, most of them adding our assistance to various international (mainly UN)-coordinated funds.

However, beginning in 2008, the Romanian MFA decreased the percentage of sums granted to international funds administered by multilateral agencies in favour of bilateral and multilateral programs and contributions, fostering cooperation between Romanian institutions, those of our beneficiary countries and various international organizations and agencies with important experience in ODA project implementation.

*The total Romanian contribution to the 10th EDF is approximately 84 million EUR.

 The information provided in the next pages of the present brochure reflect contributions made only from the Romanian MFA's development cooperation budget during the period 2007-2009 and do not include data regarding other grants or contributions made by the Romanian line ministries or by the MFA through different budgetary lines during the same period and adding up to Romania's total ODA contributions.

DEAR

In accordance with the National Strategy regarding the National Policy on International Development Cooperation, the education and training on development is an additional part of the Romanian development cooperation policy.

In this context and in the light of the internal need for capacity building and awareness raising in the field of development, Romania financed, from its 2007 ODA budget, the project: “Strengthening national institutional and education capacity to implement development assistance projects and programs (SNIECODA)” .

The project received 510,000 EUR and was implemented between 2008 and 2010 in cooperation with the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) Romania.

Its objectives were:

- To contribute to strengthening the institutional and administrative capacity of the different national actors to implement ODA programs and projects in priority countries;
- To increase the national visibility of the international development cooperation objectives, visibility campaigns and other activities promoting solidarity with developing countries;
- To introduce and promote development studies in higher education structures, creating Master degree programmes to be implemented at national level.

Main activities financed through SNIECODA:

1. A survey was conducted in 2009. The survey, was applied to a sample of 1.119 people and aimed to certify the level of knowledge and agreement with ODA policies, Romania’s development cooperation policy and the European institutions active in the field.

41% of respondents considered that Romania should provide development assistance to developing states, and 56% agreed that Romania, as an EU member state, should contribute to the EC budget financing external aid projects and programmes of the EU.

2. Over the period December 2008 – April 2009, six local awareness raising campaigns were financed and implemented by civil society organizations (members of FOND) in Bucharest, Timisoara, Iasi, Cluj and Constanta. The results were presented at a roundtable organized at the MFA on April 10, 2009.

3. Two editions of the Romanian Development Camp took place in September 2008 (at Cheile Gradistei, Brasov) and in September 2009 (at Venus, Constanta).

4. In 2009, workshops and meetings with representatives of 5 state universities across Romania were organized. They aimed to introduce new Master degree programs in international development studies. Partners in this endeavour were the University of Bucharest, the Bucharest Academy of Economic Studies, “Babeş-Bolyai” University in Cluj-Napoca, “Alexandru Ioan Cuza” University in Iasi and the West University of Timișoara. The new Master programs were officially launched in June 2010 and are currently implemented by four of the mentioned universities.

5. The www.aod.ro website and the EXPERO – a database of Romanian specialists and experts working in development assistance at the national and international level, were also launched as part of the SNIECODA project.

6. Other actions financed/co-financed through the SNIECODA Project include the 1st edition of the “Post-Conflict Reconstruction and Stabilisation – key challenges and responses” seminar for development assistance beneficiary countries and the Development Education Summer School of 2009, coordinated by PATRIR in partnership with DEEEP and FOND.

Besides the actions organized as part of the SNIECODA project, Romania also hosted and co-organized several workshops and trainings in cooperation with institutions from other donor countries, targeted at various stakeholders at national level, including line ministries, the civil society, the private sector and the Academia. These short programs promoted expertise on program and strategy writing, project evaluation, instruments and mechanisms funding development assistance programs.

Moreover, in order to increase Romanian stakeholders’ capacity-building and awareness raising, classes on development policy were introduced in the Romanian Diplomatic Institute’s curricula. They address diplomats, experts from line ministries and other governmental and local institutions and other interested categories.

PERSPECTIVES

Romania's future action on ODA

Romania's aim is to respect the commitments our country assumed at EU and international level, including the engagement to reach our assumed targets in terms of ODA volume by 2015.

At national level, a first step is the contribution to be made by Romania to the budget of the 10th European Development Fund. The disbursement for this instrument, which is the main EU ODA instrument for Sub-Saharan Africa, will begin in 2011.

We intend to further pursue our efforts on three major directions:

- Improving the legislative and strategic framework in order to adapt it to the implementation of bilateral projects and to become a reliable and predictable partner;

- Foster strategic cooperation with our beneficiary countries;
- Gradually increase our ODA budget and implementation capacity in the effort to ensure that Romania's commitments in terms of ODA volume and effectiveness are fulfilled.

Our will and commitment for international development assistance remain firm. Our objectives are adapted according to the ODA priorities at EU and international level. Moreover, we are trying to bring an efficient contribution to the timely achievement of the Millennium Development Goals.
